

ABSTRACT

A metal mounting assembly for mounting a burner or lance in a furnace has a water-cooled main body securable in an aperture in a furnace wall, a series of cooling fins extending from the main body so as to project into the furnace when secured thereto, and at least one mounting tube extending through the main body for mounting a burner or lance therein.